

This study was prepared by the Directorate of Global Energy Economics of the International Energy Agency in co-operation with other directorates and offices of the Agency. It was designed and directed by Fatih Birol. Laura Cozzi co-ordinated overall demand modelling, energy efficiency, power and renewables analysis; Tim Gould co-ordinated overall supply modelling and analysis, and the focus on India; Amos Bromhead co-ordinated the analysis of fossil-fuel subsidies. Other colleagues in the Directorate of Global Energy Economics contributed to multiple aspects of the analysis and were instrumental in delivering the study: Ali Al-Saffar (lead on Chapter 1, contributed to India and oil); Marco Baroni (lead on the power sector, contributed to renewables); Christian Besson (oil, natural gas); Alessandro Blasi (natural gas, Southeast Asia); Stéphanie Bouckaert (lead on buildings, contributed to India); Ian Cronshaw (coal, natural gas); Dan Dorner (lead on energy access and on Chapter 2); Olivier Durand-Lasserre (macroeconomic modelling); Tarik El-Laboudy (renewables); Nathan Frisbee (India, oil); Timur Gül (lead on oil demand and transport); Sixten Holm (efficiency, renewables); Shigetoshi Ikeyama (Southeast Asia); Bartosz Jurga (natural gas); Fabian Kęsicki (lead on energy efficiency, contributed to India); Markus Klingbeil (natural gas, oil); Atsuhito Kurozumi (assumptions, policies); Junling Liu (China); Christophe McGlade (oil, natural gas); Ugbizi Banbeshie Ogar (oil, India); Paweł Olejarnik (oil, natural gas and coal supply modelling); Kristine Petrosyan (lead on oil refining, contributed to India); Nora Selmet (energy access, India); Toshiyuki Shirai (Southeast Asia); Daniele Sinopoli (power, renewables); Shigeru Suehiro (lead on industry, contributed to India, Southeast Asia); Timur Topalgoekceli (India, oil); Johannes Trüby (lead on coal, contributed to India); Charlotte Vailles (power, renewables); Molly A. Walton (India, power); Brent Wanner (lead on renewables, contributed to power); David Wilkinson (lead on data management, contributed to power and renewables); Georgios Zazias (fossil-fuel subsidies, emissions); Shuwei Zhang (transport, India). Teresa Coon and Sandra Mooney provided essential support. More details about the team can be found at www.worldenergyoutlook.org.

Robert Priddle carried editorial responsibility.

The study also benefited from input provided by numerous IEA experts. In particular, Manuel Baritaud, Fabian Barrera, Kamel Bennaceur, Philippe Benoit, Aad van Bohemen, Toril Bosoni, Tyler Bryant, Pierpaolo Cazzola, Emmanouil Christinakis, Brian Dean, John Dulac, Carlos Fernández Alvarez, Araceli Fernandez, Paolo Frankl, Rebecca Gaghen, Jean-Francois Gagné, Dagmar Graczyk, Mark Hashimoto, Costanza Jacazio, Kieran McNamara, Duncan Millard, Keisuke Sadamori, Paul Simons, Melanie Slade, Misako Takahashi, Sam Thomas, László Varró, and Martin Young. Experts from the OECD and the Nuclear Energy Agency (NEA) also contributed to the report: Vincent Benezech, Jean Chateau, Isabelle Joumard, Henri Paillere, Jehan Sauvage and Ron Steenblik.

Thanks go to the IEA's Communication and Information Office for their help in producing the final report, particularly Astrid Dumond for production and to Bertrand Sadin and Anne Mayne for graphics. Debra Justus was the copy-editor.

Janusz Cofala and Peter Rafaj (International Institute for Applied System Analysis), Francesco Fuso Nerini and Dimitris Mentis (Royal Institute of Technology, KTH-dESA), Trieu Mai (National Renewable Energy Laboratory, US), Seungwoo Kang (Mines ParisTech) and Uğur Öcal (Ocal Energy Consulting) provided valuable input to the analysis.

The special focus on India benefited greatly from close co-operation with the government of India. We are particularly grateful to H.E. Arvind Panagariya, Vice Chairman of the National Institution for Transforming India (NITI Aayog), H.E. Piyush Goyal, Minister of State with Independent Charge for Power, Coal, New and Renewable Energy and H.E. Dharmendra Pradhan, Minister of State with Independent Charge for Petroleum and Natural Gas, for their support throughout the study and for kindly providing keynote addresses at our workshop in New Delhi, and to many senior officials and experts, notably Anil Jain, Advisor at NITI Aayog, for their time and invaluable assistance in answering our queries and reviewing the draft report. Sincere thanks also to the many Indian and international research organisations that provided input, in particular The Energy and Resources Institute (TERI).

The work could not have been achieved without the support and co-operation provided by many government bodies, organisations and companies worldwide, notably: CEZ; Climate Works Foundation; Danish Energy Agency; European Union (Directorate General for Climate Action); Enel; General Electric; Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry of Japan; JX Nippon Oil & Energy Corporation; Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Czech Republic; Nigerian National Petroleum Corporation; Peabody Energy; Royal Dutch Shell; Polish Geological Institute; Schlumberger; Schneider Electric; Statoil; Toshiba Corporation; Foreign and Commonwealth Office - United Kingdom; and Westinghouse.

A number of workshops and meetings were organised to get essential input to this study. The participants offered valuable new insights, feedback and data for this analysis.

- Energy and Climate Workshop, Paris, 5 March 2015.
- 3rd IEA Unconventional Gas Forum co-hosted by the IEA and the National Energy Administration of China, with the support of the CNPC Economics and Technology Research Institute, Chengdu, 10 April 2015.
- India Energy Outlook organised by the IEA in collaboration with NITI Aayog with the support of TERI, New Delhi, 13 April 2015.
- Joint IEA-ERIN Roundtable on Southeast Asia Energy Outlook, Singapore, 20 April 2015.

Further details on these events are at www.worldenergyoutlook.org/aboutweo/workshops and www.iea.org/ugforum.

IEA Energy Business Council

Special thanks go to the companies that participated in the activities of the IEA Energy Business Council (EBC) during 2015 as these generated valuable inputs to this study. The EBC is the overarching body through which the IEA interacts with industry and brings together many of the world's largest companies involved in all aspects of the energy industry. Further details may be found at www.iea.org/energybusinesscouncil.

Peer reviewers

Many senior government officials and international experts provided input and reviewed preliminary drafts of the report. Their comments and suggestions were of great value. They include:
